

The Boston Globe

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 2008

City & Region

Names

Left: John McEnroe, Myra Kraft, and Tenacity's Ned Eames.

For the love of tennis

A game of Nintendo Wii tennis played on the radio is a popular thing, judging by the caller response to tennis ace Jim Courier and WROR funnyman Tom Doyle yesterday morning and the Internet replays all day long. (Doyle beat Courier — or perhaps the former champ went easy on the radio guy.) Last night Courier joined John McEnroe and Pete Sampras for a gala at the Boston Convention and Exhibition Center to benefit Tenacity, a nonprofit tennis program for city youth. The pros will compete in Champions Cup matches through the weekend at Agganis Arena.